

Psychotropic Medication Reduction (PMR)

Decrease your risk. Increase resident safety.

Psychotropic medications can negatively affect a resident's quality of life and put them at risk of adverse drug events, including falls and hospitalization. Inappropriate use of these medications is a significant concern for long-term care communities and can have a negative impact on star ratings and incur regulatory citations.

You can improve resident safety and patient outcomes while protecting your community's reputation with the GuardianShield PMR Program.

How it works

Guardian's onsite consultant pharmacists review each resident's medication regimen, evaluating all medications with a keen focus on psychotropic drugs. Our experts:

- Confirm appropriate indication
- Ensure proper dosing
- Monitor residents for side effects
- Recommend reductions when appropriate
- Review supportive documentation
- Collaborate with the Interdisciplinary team

But we don't stop there

With GuardianShield, you'll receive robust, actionable analytics reports that identify:

- Current rates of use
- Historical trending
- Detailed resident-level reporting
- Comparison to state and national averages
- And more
